

HOW A POPE IS ELECTED.

The death of Pius the Ninth, and the question of his successor, are causing many comments and creating much discussion in all parts of the civilized world. The pontificate is an ecclesiastical position which vests in one man the highest dignity, vast power, mighty influence and unsurpassed honor. For these reasons the question "who will be pope?" is one of momentous importance, especially to the 200 millions of Catholics scattered over the globe; and now such a high ecclesiastical dignity is elected, is a matter of considerable interest.

In olden times the pope was elected by the clergy and the people of Rome, but since the days of Nicholas the Eleventh, (1058) he has been elected by the college of cardinals assembled in a conclave. The body of cardinals is called the Sacred College, and for several centuries has been limited to seventy cardinals, but the actual number is frequently less than seventy, and at the present time is about fifty. Centuries ago, any priest was eligible to the vacant pontificate, but now the cardinals must elect one of their own number. Since 1823, when Leo the Twelfth was elected, the cardinals have met in the Quirinal Palace in Rome, but for nearly four hundred years before that time, the meetings were held in the Vatican.

When a Pope dies, nine days are allowed for funeral solemnities. The usages of the church require that the conclave must meet on the tenth day, and on the 11th, voting is commenced. The apartment in which the conclave is held, has but one door, which is securely locked after the cardinals enter, and from that hour until a Pope is elected, all communication with the outside world is cut off; but each cardinal is attended by one or two waiters, who are sworn to secrecy like the cardinals themselves. In this apartment in the Quirinal Palace, are a number of cells, each cardinal occupying one, into which he is locked every night. From these separate cells, the cardinals are brought together twice a day and each time cast a ballot. A two-third vote is required to elect, and this voting twice a day is continued until one of their own number has the requisite votes. No opportunity to form a compromise is allowed, as each cardinal is bound by an oath to canvass neither for himself or any one else. After each ballot is taken, the result is announced in the conclave, and if a choice has not been made, the cardinals repair to their cells without exchanging words as to the persons voted for. Should there be a number of candidates, each having warm supporters, several weeks may be spent in reaching a final conclusion. When a Pope is elected he is crowned with a tiara and enthroned. Instead of a sceptre, he wears a pallium, which is a staff, not bent like that of a bishop, but ending in a cross. The main feature of this system of electing a Pope has been in use since the year 1274.

ABOUT THE STATE BUILDING PRIVATE PALACES.

Dr. Kemper says that so far as he is concerned individually, he thinks the State ought to build another hospital; but because the present purpose of the State is not inclined to go into a heavy expenditure, "I am prepared, therefore, to accept the next best policy." Will the Legislature explain just how Dr. Kemper secured a title-deed to the State of Wisconsin that make his individual preferences of any consequence? And when he secured authority to inform the Legislature that he is "prepared, therefore, to accept, under these conditions to recommend the next best policy?" Is the Legislature a vessel or a peer? and has Dr. Kemper showed William E. Smith on of the chair? Or is it the atmosphere of Oshkosh which makes men do queer things such as Jones and Kemper are doing?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

If we can judge from the general sentiment which seems to prevail among the members of the Legislature, the Hospital folk will not get the three hundred and ten thousand dollars which they have the check to demand for additional buildings. The members, at least a majority of them, can plainly see that these wings which are to cost upwards of a quarter of a million, are designed to satisfy a craving ambition on the part of certain ones to reside in a palace erected at the expense of the State. The poor insane are not thought of in these extravagant and outrageous demands. Ostensibly, the cry is for more room for inmates, while in reality the superintendents are grasping for more imposing buildings simply for show, and for personal aggrandizement. If comfortable, healthful, neat and commodious rooms were wanted for the insane, these could be built for one quarter of the amount asked for by Dr. Kemper. But no. While rooms are being furnished for the insane, Dr. Kemper has an eye on another thing. His ambition is to expand in influence, to extend his elegant quarters, to have around him a mass of costly buildings, with an increased number in his retinue, and to live in a grander style than the Governor. Ambitious Kemper! to show so much sympathy for the insane, to attempt to belittle the State Board of Charities for interfering with his plans, when "the entire main building of the Oshkosh hospital is used for residence purposes by him and his assistants, while 400 insane persons, for whom he has so much feeling, are forced into jails and almshouses." The Doctor goes before the Legislature with his shameful demands with as much independence and arrogance, as if, in the language of the Sentinel, he had secured a tax-title deed to the State of Wisconsin. He hasn't the least regard for economy, and does not understand the A B C of prudence and common sense.

We will dismiss Dr. Kemper, with the following paragraph from the Madison Democrat which is quite to the point: "He is a hospital superintendent whose financial interests lie in the direction of piling up expenses and more palaces. If he had recommended that the State build for him a neat little cottage outside the hospital and change the great castle that he now occupies into hospital wards, the people would be inclined to listen to him. But he did not do any such thing, and Gabriel's trumpet will wake the dead and call the living before any hospital superintendent decides to sacrifice his comfort and extravagant manner of living in order to benefit the State."

The administration is getting worked up about the outrageous prosecution of the Returning Board. President Hayes is disappointed and disgusted. His favorite and cherished Southern Policy has proved fruitless. The Southern Democrats laugh at it, and go on doing their worst. The President begins to see this, and is down-cast and sorrowful. When he and the Nicholls government had a settlement and fixed things up, the Nicholls men agreed in the Legislature to do this: Desirous of healing the dissensions which have disturbed the State for years past, anxious that citizens of all political parties may be free from the feverish anxieties of political strife, and join hands in honestly restoring the prosperity of Louisiana, the Nicholls government will discountenance any attempt at persecution, from any quarter, of individuals for past political conduct. They haven't done this, and hence the disappointment of the administration.

Mr. J. C. Plumb, of Milton, did a good thing on Friday last at joint Convention of the Agricultural and Horticultural Societies, when he presented a resolution requesting the Legislature to amend the assessment laws, making it the duty of the assessor to gather additional statistics regarding cereals and other farm crops, which shall show the number of bushels raised the previous year as well as the average for the year the assessment is made. The resolution wisely provides for the taking of the number of cows separate from other stock, and the butter and cheese product of the State in each year. To be sure, the resolution was warmly seconded by all present, and arrangements were made to urge this measure upon the present Legislature. Inasmuch as this is a matter which will not create any additional expense, and is of much importance, the Legislature should amend the assessment law as suggested by Mr. Plumb.

A dispatch from Washington says that Prof. Riley, of the United States Entomological Commission, which has been investigating the locust plague, appeared before the Appropriations Committee yesterday and made an argument for an appropriation of $25,000 to complete the locust investigation and to extend the scope of their inquiry to the Southern States ravaged by the cotton and army worms. He asserted that the Commission can obtain knowledge enough to counteract the loss from these two worms. The annual loss from the cotton-worm alone is $20,000,000. Prof. Riley stated that if the sum asked for should be granted, only a portion of it would be devoted to the completion of the Northern work.

A very important change is proposed in the manner of issuing patents in this country. The present cost of securing them through the Patent office is not only expensive, but it is believed to be detrimental to invention and rational progress. The model, the fees, the agent's fee, and other expenses, do not reach much less than $100. The proposition now is to dispense with models and examinations, grant patents to all who apply, and leave the question of right to the invention to be settled in the courts. By this system, the original cost of a patent would be but a trifle, but in many cases the cost which would follow when the case got in court, would be enormous. The new method will prove a regular bonanza to lawyers.

Mr. Spofford, the Librarian of Congress, has compiled a world's almanac for use in the United States. It is designed to combine the best elements of the "Statesman's Year Book," the Almanach de Gathia, and "McPherson's Hand Book of Politics." The title of the work is the "American Almanac." No newspaper office, lawyer, business man or any one else who desires to have a handy book of reference can afford to be without it.

An important measure which will have for its object the care of the insane now lying in poorhouses and jails, will come before the Legislature this week. When the bill is introduced, we will give its provisions, and will also show wherein the measure is practical and economical.

To-morrow night is the time limited for the introduction of new business in the Legislature. The Speaker and the Chief Clerk will be deluged by bills on Tuesday evening—every member considering that he is in duty bound to add to the flood.

The quiet and unpretending little village of Woodman, six miles from Boscon, on the Prairie du Chien division of the Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, was destroyed by fire this morning. Nearly every house in the village was consumed.

The many friends of Mr. D. H. Pulcifer, of Shawano county, are urging his name for the position of compiler of the Legislative Manual. Those who know Mr. Pulcifer speak in the highest terms of his fitness for the responsible work.

Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, whom President Hayes recently nominated as collector of this port, died on Saturday evening. He had been a prominent man in New York for many years.

The Latest of the Political Persecutions in Louisiana.

The Feeling at the National Capital in Relation Thereto.

The President and Cabinet Disgusted and Full of Wrath.

BAD FAITH.

The Latest of the Louisiana Political Persecutions, and the Feeling in Washington in Regard Thereto—President Hayes and the Cabinet Disgusted and Full of Wrath at the Bad Faith of Nicholls and "His People."

Washington, Feb. 10.—Dr. Porter, District Clerk of the Coast Survey, who was detailed by Secretary Sherman to take charge of the New Orleans Custom House when Anderson, Deputy Collector in charge, was arrested, has returned to this city, and states that there is very strong feeling among the business men of both parties in New Orleans against the prosecution of the Returning Board, and that a great many prominent Democrats came to him to express their disapproval, and their desire, in consideration of the action of President Hayes in recognizing Nicholls, to allow the political past of that State to be buried. Dr. Porter says that the prosecutions are encouraged only by active politicians for political effect, and that the people generally do not believe Anderson guilty of the charges of which he has been convicted.

In regard to the pledges made to President Hayes by the Democrats before Nicholls' recognition as Governor, which are being violated by these persecutions, there have been many denials and misstatements. The facts are these: While the commission were in New Orleans, Congressmen, Gibson, Ellis and Levy, of Louisiana, Senators Gordon and Lamar, and other Democrats were in Washington looking after the interests of their party in that State at this end of the line. On the 15th of April, 1877, the gentlemen named joined in a telegram to Governor Nicholls and the Nicholls Legislature, to the effect that before they could expect anything from President Hayes they must give them some assurance that their future conduct would not cause him to regret his action in abandoning the Packard government. On a subsequent day the Nicholls Legislature passed a series of resolutions, which were telegraphed to President Hayes, signed by them and Governor Nicholls, which various pledges were made to the President which were satisfactory to him.

President Hayes believes these pledges to have been violated by the indictment and prosecution of the Returning Board. All these indictments have been found and these prosecutions conducted under the personal direction of Governor Nicholls and Attorney General. The President declines to make any statement upon this subject for publication at present, but members of the Cabinet, especially Secretaries Sherman, McCrary, and Thompson, and particularly General Key, talk very plainly and without hesitation. When the President inaugurated his Southern policy, he announced his faith in the sincerity of the Southern people, and stated to your correspondent and to others that when it was found to be a mere none would admit sooner or consent to its change more readily than himself.

SUICIDE.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Henry M. Hosmer, aged 19, son of Colonel A. H. Hosmer, patent attorney, committed suicide to-day by taking morphine. Failure in business and refusal of marriage are the causes assigned.

MENASHA'S FIRE.

Menasha, Wis., Feb. 10.—The kit factory of the Menasha Wooden Ware Company was partly destroyed by fire on Friday night. The wind was blowing a gale at the time, and it was with the utmost exertion of our fire department that a most destructive fire was prevented. The loss on building, stock, and wares was about two thousand dollars, which was partially insured.

MYSTERIOUS.

Fond du Lac, Feb. 9.—The citizens of the town of Lamartine are greatly excited over the mysterious disappearance of Ed. Broughton, an inhabitant of that town who left home the latter part of January, for the purpose of buying a farm in Outagamie county. He had $500 on his person promising his young wife to be back in a few days. Since then no trace of him has been discovered, his brother having visited Outagamie county only to learn that he had not been there. To-day a large party of citizens searched the woods and country between this city and Broughton's residence, but found no clue. He is supposed to have been foully dealt with.

TO BE TRIED.

The Kemper County Murderers—Mrs. Chisolm Going Back to Mississippi as a Witness—Additional Counsel.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Mrs. Chisolm has gone to Kemper County, Miss., as a witness in the trial of the murderers of her husband and other persons indicted in the same connection for violation of the enforcement act. It has been suggested that the Attorney General send additional counsel for the assistance of the District Attorney in the trial of these cases, as it is believed the presence of a well-known and reliable lawyer from the North would be effective in securing a fairer trial than could otherwise be obtained, and there would be a witness to tell the North how the trials were conducted, and the conduct of the people of Mississippi in reference to them.

THE COMMITTEES.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The Committee on Ways and Means had a long session to-day, and thus far passed on Schedule A of the Tariff bill relating to cotton and cotton goods, and Schedule B relating to earthen and earthenware. No Amendments have been made to the original bill except of a verbal character. The highest negative votes were two. Chairman Wood anticipates that the bill will be passed substantially as he prepared it.

The House Committee on Public Lands to-day heard the argument of Judge Wilson, of Iowa, representing the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Chicago & Rock Island, and other roads against the resolution of Representative Oliver, wherein it is alleged the Interior Department, through an erroneous construction of the law, conveyed to certain railroads for their benefit various portions of the public lands. The resolution also instructed the Committee to investigate the matter with a view to having the lands re-conveyed to the United States.

WOODMAN.

The Little Village of Woodman Destroyed by Fire.

The Cause of the Fire Attributed to Incendiaryism and Malice Towards the Merchants.

But One Building Covered by Insurance.

WOODMAN DESTROYED.

Special Dispatch to the Jamesville Gazette. Woodman, Feb. 11.—The little village of Woodman, a station near Prairie du Chien, on the St. Paul Railway, was nearly totally destroyed by fire at two o'clock this morning. Some ten or twelve buildings, together with the railway depot were destroyed. The fire was the work of an incendiary, and was done through malice toward some of the merchants. It is rumored that the ringleader is known, and will of course be immediately arrested. No insurance, except on one building.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Milwaukee, Feb. 10.—This morning a well-to-do farmer named Charles Franke was run over by a train at Oakwood station, on the St. Paul road, and instantly killed. Franke had wandered on the track at night while under the influence of liquor.

THE COLLECTORSHIP.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Gen. McMillan has withdrawn his claims for the Collectorship of the Port of New Orleans in favor of H. R. Steele, who held a high judicial position under the Kellogg Government. It is said the President is disposed to yield to the pressure in favor of Packard for the place.

A MINE ON FIRE.

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 10.—A fire in the Wadesville shaft colliery of the Pottsville & Reading Coal and Iron Company, discovered two weeks ago, is still burning. As all other attempts to extinguish the fire have been fruitless, the creek will be turned into the mine to-morrow and the works flooded. This will cause much loss to the Company and suspension of labor by about 500 employees for the entire season.

TWO JURORS.

New Orleans, Feb. 10.—Louis Monplaisir and James Prince, colored jurors in the Anderson trial, state to responsible parties that their verdict of "Guilty," but recommended to the mercy of the Court," was given under an impression that this was tantamount to an acquittal, and they were so informed by the other jurors. Both are extremely young men, neither over 22, and it is claimed that Prince is disqualified as a juror having been born in 1858.

CUSTOMS FRAUDS.

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.—It is reported to-night that the well known firm of Peter Wright & Sons, the largest shippers in this city, have had their books and papers seized, and that the members of the concern have been arrested on a charge of defrauding the government of import duties to the amount of $200,000. Wright & Sons are agents of the only American line of steamships plying between the United States and England, of the Red Star Line between Philadelphia and Antwerp, of Sir Hugh Allan, the Vanderbilt of Canada, and of the famous Allan Steamship Lines.

A GREAT FEAT.

New Orleans, Feb. 10.—Henry Schmebl, the pedestrian, completed at St. Patrick's Hall a walk of 500 miles at 7:30 p. m., finishing in 142 hours, seventeen minutes, and fifty seconds, having forty-two minutes to spare. The first 100 miles was made in twenty-three hours eleven minutes, five seconds; the second in twenty-nine hours, thirty minutes, twenty-five seconds; the third in twenty-seven hours, forty minutes, forty seconds; the fourth in twenty-nine hours, four minutes, twenty seconds, and the fifth in thirty-two hours, fifty-one minutes, twenty-five seconds. The time of the last mile was eleven minutes, twenty-five seconds. A large attendance, including many ladies, was present. Schmebl received several floral offerings at the finish. He says the climate here is all that can be desired for walking. Physicians pronounce his condition good.

Senator Conkling's paper, the Utica Republican, says that the administration practically tells Northern soldiers that they fought on the wrong side.

A Gentle Hint.

In our style of climate, with its sudden changes of temperature, rain, wind and sunshine often intermingled in a single day—it is no wonder that our children, friends and relatives are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, half the deaths resulting directly from this cause. A bottle of Boesche's German Syrup kept about your home for immediate use will prevent serious sickness, a large doctor's bill, and perhaps death, by the use of three or four doses. For curing Consumption, Hemorrhages, Pneumonia, Severe Coughs, Croup or any disease of the Throat or Lungs, its success is simply wonderful, as your druggist will tell you. German Syrup is now sold in every town and village on this continent. Sample bottles for trial, 10c.; regular size, 75c. de3340ed-157wewm

ROME.

A Stormy Time Among the Cardinals Over the Selection of a Pope.

A Quarrel as to the Place of Meeting of the Great Conclave.

The Body of the Dead Pope in St. Peter's.

Tremendous Crowds of the Faithful View the Remains.

ROME.

Stormy Times Among the Cardinals—General Information—The Sacred College—The Dead Pope's Body in St. Peter's.

Rome, Feb. 9.—The newspapers narrate circumstantially the stormy and acrimonious scene at Friday's congregation of Cardinals, Cardinal Manning, at the head of the extremists, wishing the conclave to meet at Malta. Even words of scism were uttered. Later accounts concur that the minority against holding the Conclave at Rome is insignificant.

The reforms says the Roman and German Cardinals wish to elect a Pope of advanced age, an Italian, but one not intimately connected with the events of the late reign.

The Italian government has telegraphed foreign governments pledging the security of the Conclave.

Contrary to previous arrangements, the Pope's body was removed to-night to the Sixtine Chapel, and thence through the covered passage to St. Peter's, where it will lie in state Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The alteration implies the hastening of the Conclave.

Rome, Feb. 10.—To-morrow on the arrival of the foreign cardinals, the sacred college will permanently constitute itself into a congregation. A bill left by Pius IX. authorizes the Cardinals to deviate from establishing their residence, but does not prescribe any special new law.

The public were admitted to St. Peter's to view the remains of the Pope at 6:30 this morning. The crowd was tremendous and many women fainted. A company of soldiers had to enter the church to regulate the passage of the crowd. The body, arrayed in the Pontifical robes, lies on a cushion, but each corner of which stands a member of the Noble Guard with a drawn sword. The bed is surrounded by twelve large candelabra, and is so placed that the feet of the deceased are outside the altar rails, in order that the faithful may kiss them. The face is calm and unchanged by death.

THAT "MIRACLE."

Mauch Chunk, Pa., Feb. 10.—The Rev. Fathers Heenan and Bance read in their respective churches to-day a letter from Archbishop Wood in reference to the alleged miraculous cure of the sick woman. Neither of the priests made any comment, merely reading to their congregation the Archbishop's letter, which pronounces the affair to be a delusion, and warns participants therein not to repeat the offense.

Subject for a Missionary.

Written for the New York Clipper, by Coxey. He was an old "jour" compositor, who had held cases in almost every city from Boston to Galveston. Age compelled him to grace his nose with a pair of steel-rimmed spectacles, which, it was plain to be seen, were also aged, and added to his sedate appearance. Silvery threads had become numerous visible among the raven locks that once adorned his well-shaped head, and a stubby growth of pepper-and-salt beard served to make his angular cheeks look severely broader. His clothes, once black, had faded to a shade that plainly indicated their threadbare condition. Altogether, he was a royal specimen of the Bohemian type. He had been working in an Ohio town for about a month, and hadn't taken a drink for a week, when upon a recent Sunday evening a fellow-boarder surprised him by an invitation to attend church. He looked strange and mystified. Pushing his bony fingers through his grizzled locks, he stared blankly at his friend, and, as though just awakened from a Rip-Van-Winkle, deliberately said:

"Jim, I'll go. Haven't been inside of a church for over thirty years, and don't know what kind of an entertainment they'll give; but I'll chance it."

And they went. As he timidly entered the auditorium of one of the finest churches, a step or two behind his companion, he seemed bewildered, looked right and left almost at a single glance, and seemed to wish he was out of the place. At that moment a courteous usher stepped up and offered to show them to a seat. He fingered his stubby beard nervously, and remarked:

"Don't give us a reserved seat, please, 'cause I'm not accustomed to it; I would prefer the gallery, if you please." But, glancing up and seeing no gallery there, he continued: "Never mind, don't trouble yourself; I'll just sit right down here in the pit."

And with his amused though slightly disturbed companion, he wilted strangely into the first vacant pew he observed, and sat quietly picking the plush cushion with the pin he used for a toothpick, until the organ sounded the prelude and the choir arose. While they sang the voluntary he maintained a critical posture and listened with a strange frown. As they resumed their seats he turned to his friend and whispered:

"That's a good orchestra, but the music is too solemn for comedy, and too tame for tragedy. What line of business do they do, anyhow? Got a programme about you? Then his friend punched his leg and whispered back:

"Dry up, can't you? You're not in a theatre." But that only added to his confusion; he couldn't comprehend the situation. It was a genuine novelty to him; he didn't know the ropes, and was to go blind. He didn't understand the person as he announced the hymn; but not noticing the congregation reaching for books in the racks in front of them, and seeing his friend do the same, he softly remarked:

"Say, Jim, old boy, share up and declare a dividend on that libretto. I came here to accommodate you, and I want to understand what is going on."

He evidently expected to hear the "stage party" go off into immediate operative hysteria, and when instead, the whole audience joined in unisoned song, he looked astonished beyond degree, and seemed to imagine someone was receiving a grand, complimentary benefit. He finally thought he would take a hand himself, and tried to sing; but it was a sad failure—an absolute break-down, from the facts, first, that he hadn't tried to sing for twenty years; and, second, that he had never heard the tune. It was the sermon that astonished him most completely, though; it made him nervous—he twisted about right and left, looked backwards towards the door, and longed to be down in the print-shop with the boys tumbling a "jeph," but he dared not stir; finally, he turned to Jim as a relief to the monotony, and gave vent to his opinion:

"If I'd known this was to have been one of these monologue businesses, I'd stayed away. I'm a victim of misplaced confidence. Dr. Landis can give this fellow lessons all right. I wish I had a clipper to read. He's an amateur. Wait a minute, Jim, when they ring the door curtain."

He sank back in the cushions, and thought of days in years long past when he made his first tramp as a "jour print," and soon sank away to oblivious happiness until the choir aroused him. As the congregation was slowly filing out he said: "Jim, I thought you had a better opinion of my appreciation than that."

Lamar and Edmunds.

Lamar is a peculiar looking man, more striking than attractive in his physical make-up. He is tall, thin, and a little Randolph, though he is the elder-looking of the two. He is short and heavy built, has a full head of black hair which he wears long and square cut, after the style of an English hunter's tail. A long goatee depends from his chin, and his face, which is far from handsome, lacks the fresh, cool, or healthy look which is usually associated with the face of a statesman, and is always extemporaneous, and delivered with effect.

The great man of the Senate, and beyond, is George F. Edmunds, of Vermont. He is not fifty years of age, and he is the oldest-looking man in the Senate. His head is grizzled with hair, except a light fringe above the ears, and his full gray beard gives him a venerable appearance. His figure is tall, not portly, and a little stooped. Running across the top of his forehead there is a slight projection, the appearance of which is suggestive of a special depositary of brains. Whether it is or not, it is unanimously conceded that he has an extra supply. His late financial speech was, of course, very able, it is true, but his manner of delivering it, that I wish to refer to here. His printed speeches, which are always printed in type, are delivered, are models of purity in language and solidity of sentiment, and they impress the reader with the power and dignity of the man; and yet there is not one in the Senate who can compare with him for rapier and wit. He submits to interruptions, three or four at a time, and without being annoyed, or even annoyed. He talks without effort, answers his interrogators consecutively, and resumes at the exact point at which the threat of his argument was parted. His handling of Blaine and Matthews on Friday was a rare entertainment. Blaine is never comfortable unless he is on the ramparts. Since his encounter with Dawes and Floor, he has felt a swell with satisfaction, and having as he believed, vanquished Massachusetts, he coveted a wrestle with Vermont. He had three repeated his interruptions as to whether the small bondholder would be paid in silver and the large bondholder in gold, and on each occasion Edmunds had answered him with his face to the chair, and his back to the speaker. A fourth time he came up, and patting the fat forehead of his right hand in the palm of his left—Jeems always does this when he is mad—he said he wanted an explicit answer, that was all, but still kept his upright position. Edmunds said: "That is all. The Senator had better sit down." And Blaine sat the remainder of the speech out.

Senator Edmunds is a dignified as well as a learned and shrewd debater; but when he is interrupted on all sides by questions, he has the habit of sitting upon the arm of his chair until all have finished, and very often he will continue his speech in this attitude, answering one and then another, and then resuming his argument in a calm and confident way, until he becomes excited and resumes an upright position. He never prepares sentences for sentimental effect. If he perorates, he doesn't know it. As he said to Blaine, he lives in the Senate, he speaks to the Senate, and not for buncombe. There is not in Congress a man who can more ably advocate a good cause, or more successfully make a bad one appear the better.

Re-Opening a Thoroughfare. In order to guard against results utterly subversive to health, it is absolutely essential that the grand thoroughfare or avenue of the system, the bowels, should be re-opened as speedily as possible when they become obstructed. If they are not, the bile is misdirected into the blood; the liver becomes torpid; viscous matters gets into the stomach, and produces indigestion; headaches ensue, and other symptoms are produced which a prolongation of the exciting cause only tends to aggravate. The apartment proper of Hostetter's Stomach Bitter constitutes a most useful agent in overcoming constriction of the bowels, and promoting a regular habit of body. It is infinitely superior to the drastic cathartics frequently used for the purpose, since it does not, like them, act violently, but produces a natural paucity effect, which does not impair the tone of the evacuator organs, which it invigorates instead of weakening. The stomach and liver also, indeed the entire system is strengthened and regulated by it. feb10daw1w

White House Dinners.

From Harper's Bazar.

An invitation to dine at the White House is construed as a command, and other engagements must be broken, even if they are dinner engagements, in order to accept it. The dinner takes place in the State dining room; the table ornaments are the long mirror edged with flowers, and the tall vases with great abundance of flowers from the greenhouses attached to the mansion everywhere about it, and small bouquets at every place, with gold-washed plate and handsome damask and china. A caterer has usually the management of it, at so much a plate. Every thing is of the best; and for the rest, although often on a larger scale than others, it is like any festively conducted dinner party. It is customary for the President, in the course of the winter, to invite once to dinner every member of both houses of congress, the chiefs of the diplomatic corps, the cabinet ministers, the justices, the general and the admiral, and of course the wives of the President. For obvious reasons, the invitations seldom can extend to other members of the families. Political feelings sometimes cause exceptions even in the number named. Those who are sufficiently familiar at the White House to call there in the evening, call there in handsome de-luxé; they may go without a bouquet, and some who are very particular to go even in full dress. The cabinet ministers' dinners are governed by the general rules of society elsewhere. At the house of the Secretary of State more of the foreign people are to be found, and one who is invited to dine there feels quite in the inner circle. The President is always to be addressed in speaking to him as "Mr. President," the various cabinet ministers as "Mr. Secretary," the Chief Justice as "Mr. Chief Justice," never as "Judge," the other members of the Supreme Court as "Mr. Justice."

What Beauty Will Do.

The trial of Miss Emma Davenport, of Goodland, Va., took place at Richmond, last Wednesday, before the United States Circuit Court. The fair Postmistress pleaded guilty. She excited the deepest sympathy among all the crowd of spectators who were present at the trial, and the large assembly of members of the bar who were attracted by the peculiar case and the remarkable beauty of the fair prisoner. The young girl, when told to stand and hear the indictment read, broke down and burst into a paroxysm of tears. The jury before whom she was to be tried evidenced their sympathy for the young girl, many of them being melted to tears. The scene was truly a novel and most affecting one. The aged father and many of the friends of Miss Davenport were present waiting the sentence of the Court, each trembling with fear, and having in their minds the ignominy of a long term in the Albany penitentiary. In an answer to a question propounded by the Judge as to her reasons for committing the crime, Miss Davenport said she stole the silk dress to attend a ball which was given in her neighborhood a few weeks ago. She had promised to go with her beau, could not raise the funds to purchase the silk dress, and seeing a package in the Post Office which contained the coveted article, could not forbear taking it. When pronouncing sentence, the Court was so touched at the scene around him that he was affected to tears. The sentence was the lightest that could possibly have been inflicted—a fine of $100. The money was promptly paid, and her beau announced that the wedding should take place the next day, and he was applauded by all the old masculine simpltons.

Trying to Fool the Hangman.

In 1874 a fellow named Kelly was sentenced to execution at Trim, in Ireland. On the early morning of the day intended to be his last he contrived to cut his blanket into strips about four inches wide, join them together with strong wooden threads, and form a double sling. This he passed under his arms, fastened the ends at his neck, and there provided an iron hook to receive the halter. This accounted for his proceeding to the place of execution. It is supposed that he had found means to bribe the hangman, to whom he made a request to draw him up close to the pulley, and lower him gently when dead. But the crafty manœuvre did not succeed. Kelly had not allowed for the stretching of the strips of blanket by his own weight, the point of the hook fastened into his wind-pipe and gave him so much pain that he struggled violently. He was, however, allowed to hang until really dead, when his sling apparatus was discovered.—All the Year Round.

According to the Monthly Weather Review the rain-fall in some localities in the United States during the month of November was enormous, amounting to nearly 21 inches at Point Pleasant, Louisiana; 17½ inches at Mount Washington; 12½ inches at Cape Lookout, North Carolina; 12½ inches at Portland, Oregon; 9½ at Boston, Lynchburg, etc. As was to be expected, numerous floods resulted, which did great damage, the Potomac, Rappahannock, James, and many other streams in the East having been higher than for many years past.

The highest velocity of the wind recorded was 132 miles per hour at Mount Washington, 64 at Wood's Hole, 63 at New London, 60 at Philadelphia, etc., representing no inconsiderable degree of pressure.

A farmer was boasting to Sam about the speed of his horse, which, he said, would trot a mile inside of three minutes, and follow it for three miles. "A mile inside of three minutes ain't much to brag about," said Sam. "Why, the other day I was up to S— sixteen miles off. Just as I started from home a shower came sweeping on. The rain struck on the back part of the wagon, and the moment it struck I hit old Kate a cut with the whip; away she trotted, scarcely touching her forefeet to the ground. She kept nip and nip with the shower. The wagon was filled with water, but not a drop fell on me."

At a Custom-House sale in New York, recently, an old oil painting, without "breath," "tone," or "effect," and with a hole punched in the foreground, was sold for $5, and it was considered pretty dear at that as it was impossible to tell whether it was a battle-piece or the portrait of an old monk. The discovery has since been made that it is a Murillo, and its price is fixed at $3,000. According to this valuation a panel of old fence whitewashed by Murillo would be worth $900,000.—Norristown (Pa.) Herald.

"Madam, do you know that you possess one of the best voices in the world?" asked a saucy fellow to a woman. "Indeed, do you think so?" replied she, with a flush of pride at the compliment. "I do most certainly," continued the rascal; "for, if you hadn't, it would have been worn out long ago." For the first time in her life that woman had not a word to say.

An old washer woman once would hang her clothes to dry on the railings of the church; after repeated prohibitions from the church-warden, she at last came out with the following burst of eloquence: "Lor' bless ye, Sir, ye wouldn't go and take the bread out of my mouth, would ye?" "Sides, Sir, cleanliness comes next to godliness, parson says."

"And where was the man stabbed?" asked an excited lawyer of a physician. "The man was stabbed about an inch and a half to the left of the medial line, and about an inch above the umbilicus," was the reply. "Oh, yes, I understand now; but I thought it was near the town hall."

MISCELLANEOUS.

The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs are SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEWEEED TONIC, and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and if taken before the lungs are destroyed they effect a speedy cure. To these medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivaled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs, nature throws it off by an expectoration, and the patient has relief from the prostrating cough. The Mandrake Pills must be freely used to cleanse and stimulate the stomach and liver; they remove all obstructions, relax the gall bladder and start the bile freely, and the liver is relieved. Schenck's Sea-Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed mixes with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by taking up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to avoid fresh cold. Full directions accompany each preparation. All who wish to consult Dr. Schenck personally, can do so at his principal office, corner of Sixth and Arch Sts., Philadelphia, every Monday.

Letters to the above address, asking advice, answered free of charge.

Schenck's medicines are sold by all druggists.

CATARRH

NEVER-FAILING RELIEF

AFFORDED BY

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

It is a fact that can be substantiated by the most respectable testimony ever offered in favor of any remedial medicine, that the RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH does in every case afford instant and permanent relief. It is the only medicine that cures the disease, no matter how long standing, or how severe the case, the first dose cures such evidence of its value in the treatment of Catarrh affections that confidence is at once felt in its ability to do all that is claimed for it. The testimony of physicians, druggists, and patients is unanimous on this point, and the accumulating evidence is in point of respectability superior to any ever before obtained in favor of a popular remedy. The proprietors, therefore, may justly feel proud of the position this remedy has attained, and believe it worthy of its reputation.

10 YEARS A SUFFERER.

From Hon. Theo. P. Bogert, Bristol, R.I.

MEAS. WEEKS & POTTER, Catarrh, - Feeling thoroughly convinced of the efficacy of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH, I am induced to drop you a line to say that I have been a sufferer from Catarrh of the Prostate for many years, and that I have been cured by the use of your medicine. I have never found anything that promises such relief and ultimate cure as that of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE. I have been a sufferer from this disease for more than ten years, and not until recently could I be induced to persevere with the treatment. I read the letter of Mr. HENRY WELLS, and was thoroughly convinced of its curative properties. Hoping that others similarly afflicted like myself will be induced to make the trial, I am, gentlemen, very truly, etc.

Gen. Harney's Foot Race.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Gen. William S. Harney, of this city, when a young man, had the reputation of being the swiftest runner in the army, as well as the best Indian fighter. He was a strict disciplinarian, but not one of the "stuck-up" sort so common nowadays. He would often mingle with his men when not on duty, and laugh and joke with them on terms of familiarity, and went so far at times as to compete with them in the exciting sport of foot-racing. An impression prevailed at one time that almost any Indian could outrun a white man; but Gen. Harney believed that he could beat any red rascal that wore moccasins, and when ever he met a warrior who boasted of his fleetness of foot, he took great pleasure in giving him a trial, and always came out victorious. Only once did he fail to reach the winning post after his adversary, and that was by a "ton!" The affair occurred at Fort Winnebago in the winter of 1830, when Fox River was frozen over and the weather was very cold. An Indian had committed some breach of the rules of the garrison, for which Harney, then a Captain, was ordered to administer a flogging. He always believed in giving every man a "fair shake," white or red, and on this occasion he conducted Mr. Lo some distance up the river, and, giving him 100 yards the start, told him if he reached a certain point without being overtaken he would escape the flogging. The race was on the ice, which at some places was thinner than at others, on account of the formation of "air-holes." Both men wore moccasins, and both were stripped and belted for the race, Harney swinging a cowhide in his hand, with which he confidently expected to accelerate the movements of the Winnebago on overtaking him. At the word "go," both started at full speed, the Indian doing his best to save his hide, and the white man anxious to preserve his reputation as a runner. Harney gained rapidly on the warrior, and was getting ready to swing his rawhide, when the cunning savage made an oblique movement toward a spot where the ice was thin. Being of much lighter weight than his partner, he passed over the dangerous place in safety, but as soon as Harney stepped upon the thin ice it shivered like glass, and down went the tall Captain, sinking into the cold water like a sea lion. Being a good swimmer, a few strokes brought him to the edge of the thick ice, just as he was about to make his way to his quarters, spangled with icicles, and as mad as a buffalo bull. He lost his cowhide in the water, but that was a small matter, as Mr. W. Harney never returned to the fort while the Captain remained there. Capt. Harney's foot race afforded "old Twigg's" occasion for many a joke, and it was a long time before he heard the last of it.

A Good Temperance Tale.

From Ohio comes a capital temperance story. Judge Quay, the temperance lecturer, in one of his efforts there, got off the following:

"All of those who in youth acquire a habit of drinking whisky, at forty years will be total abstainers or drunkards. No one can use whisky for years in moderation. If there is a person in the audience before me whose experience disputes this, let him make it known. I will account for it, or acknowledge that I am mistaken."

A tall, large man arose, and folding his arms in a dignified manner across his breast, said:

"I offer myself as one whose own experience contradicts your statement."

"Are you a moderate drinker?" asked the judge.

"I am."

"How long have you drunk in moderation?"

"Forty years."

"And you were never intoxicated?"

"Never."

"Well," remarked the judge, scanning his subject close from head to foot, "yours is a singular case, yet it is easily accounted for. I am reminded by it of a little story. A colored man, with a loaf of bread and a bottle of whisky, sat down to dine by the side of a clear stream. In breaking the bread, some of the crumbs dropped into the water. These were eagerly seized and eaten by the fish. That circumstance suggested to the colored man, the idea of dipping the bread into the liquor and feeding it to them. He tried it; it went well. Some of the fish ate it, became drunk, and lay helpless on the water. By this stroke of strategy he taught a great number. But to the stream was a large fish very different from the rest; he ate freely of the bread and liquor, but with no perceptible effect; he was shy of every effort of the colored man to catch it.

He resolved to take it at all hazards that he might learn its name and nature. He procured a net, and after much effort caught it, carried it to a neighbor, and asked his opinion of the matter. The other surveyed the wonder for a moment, and then said, 'I understand this case. That fish is a mullet head; it hasn't got any brains.'

In other words," added the judge, "alcohol affects only the brain, and of course those having none may drink without injury."

The storm of laughter that followed drove the moderate drinker from the house.

Josh Billings Tells about the Goslin.

The goslin is the old goose's young child. They are yellow all over, and as soft as a ball of wool. Their feet are white whole, and they can swim as easy as a drop of kator oil on the water. They are born annually about the 15th of May, and never was known to die naturally. If a man was to tell me he saw a goslin die a natural death, I wouldn't believe him under oath after that, not even if he swore he had lied about seeing a goslin die.

The goslin are different in one respect from the human family, who are said to grow weaker and wiser, whereas a goslin always grows fatter and more phooshy. I have seen a goslin that they sed was 93 years old last June, and didn't look an hour older than one that was only 17.

The goslin waddles when he walks and paddles when he swims, but never dives like a duck ought of sight in the water, but only changes ends.

The food of the goslin is rye, corn, oats, and barley, sweet apples, hasty pudding, succothash, and baked cabbage, and cooked potatoe, raw meat, win, jelly and turnips, stale bread, cold hash, and buckwheat cakes that are left over.

They ain't so particular as some phoiks that they eat, won't get mad and quit if they can't have wet toast and lam chops every morning for breakfast.

Funny Fashion.

From the Christian Intelligencer.

With Longfellow's poem "Keramos," and Prime's poem on pottery, and Di Censola's poem on Cyprus to guide it, the fashionable world hereabout has turned to the worship of the old. Pots, pans, plates, jars, and vases, and altars, and gods of ancient paganism, have eclipsed Paris, clouded Berlin, and set at naught Versailles. Japan and China hide their diminished heads; Assyria, Egypt, Ciltum, are mused. Ladies who do not know how to bake bread, are learning how to bake terra cotta ornaments. Severe porcelain is stuck back into closets, that black jars, such as were used by dead nations, buried thousands of years ago, may stand out in sombre beauty before the eye. A very curious thing is fashion, and sometimes very funny.

VEGETINE.

HER OWN WORDS.

BALTIMORE, MD., Feb. 13, 1877.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

Dear Sir,--Since several years I have got a sore and very painful foot. I had some physicians, but they could not cure me. Now I have heard of your Vegetine from a lady who was sick for a long time, and became well from your Vegetine, and I went and bought me one bottle of Vegetine; and after I had used one bottle, the pains left me, and it began to heal, and then I bought one other bottle, and so I take it yet. I thank God for this remedy and yourself; and wishing every sufferer may pay attention to it. It is a blessing for health.

Mrs. C. H. HARRIS, 638 West Baltimore Street.

VEGETINE

SAFE AND SURE.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

In 1872 your Vegetine was recommended to me, and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and under its persistent use I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give Vegetine my most unqualified endorsement, as being a safe, sure, and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the system to new life and energy. Vegetine is the only medicine I use; and as long as I live I never expect to find a better.

Yours truly,

W. H. CLARK, 120 Monterey Street, Allegheny, Pennsylvania.

VEGETINE.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

CHARLESTOWN.

Dear Sir,--This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that for Scrofula or Cancerous Humors or Rheumatic affections it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can heartily recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.

Yours respectfully,

Mrs. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell St.

VEGETINE.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

BOSTON, Feb. 13, 1871.

MR. H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

Dear Sir,--About one year ago I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility. Vegetine was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefited by its use. I procured the article, and after using several bottles, was restored to health, and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health.

Respectfully yours,

F. M. PETTINGILL, Firm of S. M. Pettengill & Co., No. 10 State St., Boston.

VEGETINE.

ALL HAVE OBTAINED RELIEF.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

Dear Sir,--I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicines without any relief. In September last I commenced taking Vegetine, and in a few days my health was steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds in flesh. There are several others in this place taking Vegetine, and all have obtained relief.

Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE, Overseer of Card Room, Portsmouth Co., N. H.

THE BELLOIT MAIL.

From February 4th to 9th inclusive being the first week of the mail route between this city and Beloit, there was received from Beloit for delivery at this office 99 letters and postal cards; and the number sent from here in the same time was 107—total 206—or an average of 34½ per day. Postmaster Patterson is keeping a memorandum of the mail passing each way, to see if the two cities derive any benefit from having a direct communication with each other. These figures do not embrace mail sent here for points north, east or west of Milton and Monroe way, but only those for Janesville and Beloit delivery.

SCHOOL TEACHERS' TROUBLES.

The Teachers' Association for Superintendent District No. 1, met at the Hanover school house last Saturday, and, as there was not a quorum present, adjourned to meet in the same place, Saturday, March 21, at 10 o'clock, after which F. L. Humes, resident teacher, was called to the chair and an informal discussion of school grievances and the best manner of meeting them, was taken up. After a pleasant and profitable discussion the meeting broke up to meet again at the time stated.
The programme will be the same as already announced, and it is hoped that as many of the teachers of this District as possible, including the Superintendent, will be present.

ROBBING SMOKE-HOUSES.

What Johnny stole a ham? The police would like to have him show up, and it is too modest to do so, they are determined to make him. A general raid seems to have been made a few nights ago on the smoke-houses, especially those in the vicinity of Monterey. Louis Cate has missed two pieces, R. P. Allen has had stolen two shoulders and one ham, and Fred Kaiser lost five pieces. The thieving was evidently committed by some one or ones who did not have a team with which to carry off the plunder as there were more pieces cut down than they were able to carry off. Though most of the smoke-houses have been left unlocked there has been no trouble reported, and no one seemed inclined to molest the property until last Thursday and Friday nights.

REV. ROBERT'S SERMON.

At the Baptist church, the Rev. Mr. Roberts preached a sermon of unusual vigor and power. The text was Acts 8—30, 31. Following is a condensed report of the discourse:

This chapter contains an account of the first sermon which was preached under the Gospel dispensation. The text illustrates the interest which every human being must take in the scriptures when his eyes are really open to its important truths.

The question asked of Philip by this visitor from a far country—"How can I understand the Scriptures unless some man should guide me?"—shows that to answer this ever-recurring question there must be permanent and responsible exponents of the Bible, changes in the significance of word, correction of erroneous translations which have been inadvertently made; discoveries in ancient lands which add new force to the unimpeachable integrity of the divine records, and many other causes make necessary the presence of an instructor whose duty it is to correct errors and promulgate truth. The text is naturally divided in two heads—Christianity in the Scriptures and Christianity in the soul. The Old Testament is replete with references to and prophecies "concerning the coming of Christ. It was one of these which arrested the attention of this stranger. However casual and superficial may be the examination of those ancient records, the fact of a coming Christ forces itself upon the mind of the peruser with an indelible effect. As Christianity was then only prospective; it is now preeminently personal, and comes to every individual for acceptance. As a matter of authentic history, and as a guide to correct living and to immortality, it is of unquestioned authority. Periodically there are attempts made to subvert and destroy the Bible. As often as these attacks have been made they have been repelled, leaving the theological fortress more impregnable than before. These attacks are made sometimes under one guise, sometimes under another. At the same time the embattled hosts are making their assaults under the banner of science, so-called. The contest is inevitable, and Christians should not cry peace, peace, for there is no peace until the enemies of religion surrender their assumptions.

The call is for firmness, perseverance and enthusiasm. The position of Christians should be positive and their adherence to it should not be wavering. Centuries ago their hesitation and vacillation led the enemies of the church to contemptuously refer to "Christian veracity" which was analogous to "Punic Faith." It also led to the adoption of that vicious apothegm that "a bad promise is better broken than kept." Let one mark out a wise and right course and adhere to it with decision and determination. The Rev. gentleman welcomed the encounter with the opponents of the Gospel and expressed the conviction that as eighteen hundred years of unremitting discussion had only served to still more firmly establish the foundations of Christianity, so the immediate and future contests would only make the superstructure more noble and glorious.

BOUND TO HAVE A FUSS.

Last Saturday night as Mike Watson was cozy warming himself in the express office, he noticed a fellow, who as he came along the sidewalk, gave Mike's horse a malicious thump in the nose, and followed it up by a like thump in the ribs. That was too much for Mike, and going out he hailed the fellow and wanted an explanation. A saucy reply was given, accompanied by a threat to wipe the sidewalk with Mike, and speedily followed up by a thump in the back of Mike's head. Mike proved too much for the fellow, although two other roughs came up to assist the horse-beater. Just as Mike had laid one of the trio out, and was giving the other two a rattling other citizens rushed up, and the inspiration ran through the crowd. Everybody wanted to fight somebody else, but fortunately the scrimmage was speedily squelched. Dr. Whiting clucked the threat of one of Mike's assailants, and helped Marshal Keating take him in custody. A second one of the party was afterwards found in a saloon, and by the aid of two men and a buggy was finally taken in. The third one was arrested about 11 o'clock in another saloon. The three were strangers in the city, except to the police. Two of them had seen service in the gravel pit, and will, doubtless now have a chance to continue their labors. Justice Patten will hear the case this afternoon. One of the trio received a bad cut on the head where Mike had hit him, but beyond this no blood was shed.

These persons who braved the storm on Saturday evening to listen to Mrs. Richardson on "The Lake Poets" at the parlors of All Souls church, received a generous reward for their outlay of time and display of courage. Her attractive presence, quiet demeanor, aesthetic culture, and evident enthusiasm with her subject, gave to the excellent matter of her discourse a double force and charm. She began by alluding to the condition of English poetry at the commencement of the present century. Since the time of Pope it had remained in a condition of monotonous mediocrity. Scintillations like Gray's Elegy occasionally appeared, but they were the exceptional productions of ordinary authors, and only served to make more manifest the poetic barrenness of the times. Great political or religious upheavals affect the poetry as well as the other literature of a country which feels their influence. Hence the American and French Revolutions gave new inspirations to genius, and were the immediate cause of the wonderful poetic awakening in the first quarter of this century. The lecturer presented Wordsworth, Coleridge and Southey as the pre-eminent great poets of the early period. Being on terms of the most friendly nature, having many tastes and sympathies in common, and getting their impressions and prejudices from the same sources, all of them were in early life radical in their liberal notions of politics and religion; and all of them grew conservative with age until they recanted their early views. Admiring our free institutions, Coleridge and Southey once formed a project of coming to America; but pecuniary shortage prevented its realization. She regarded Coleridge—"logician, metaphysician and bard"—as the greatest of this trio. He was full of learning, possessed a wonderful imagination, and was an overwhelming talker. He lacked industry, was physically weak and indulged in opium. His enthusiasm carried him beyond all theories and systems, while Wordsworth seemed to have a theory of poetry and confined himself within the proper bounds. Wordsworth was an elaborator of trivial things, which is well illustrated in the poem which narrates the direful disaster which overtook Peter Bella's jacksaws. Twenty severe blows were given the poor animal, and the poet takes a verse to describe each blow. He abjured this simplicity in after years. Southey dealt in imagery, was full of the love of the Arabs and Persians and his poems were stores in verse. In some respects he was not of the Lake Standard.

These poets made later poets possible. Following them came Byron and Shelley, well-bred and educated, and firm friends, Shelley had a noble and pure nature, was given the poor animal, and the poet takes a verse to describe each blow. He abjured this simplicity in after years. Southey dealt in imagery, was full of the love of the Arabs and Persians and his poems were stores in verse. In some respects he was not of the Lake Standard.

OUR DADS' DOLLAR.

To the Editor:
I see I am in arrears to the Gazette. In thinking over the matter, a suggestion comes to me from the "Bland Silver Bill."

In looking over my treasures (I have only a few left, the times are so hard) I found a veritable "dollar of the fathers," or rather a number of them. One of them reads as follows:

This bill entitles the bearer to receive eight Spanish milled dollars or the value thereof, in gold or silver, according to a resolution of Congress passed at Philadelphia, November 29th, 1773.

My suggestion is that you take this "dollar of the fathers" at say (I will be easy on you) 50 per cent. of its face value, and credit me with two years' subscription to the Gazette. Why not? Your silver men are going to make you take $1.82 worth of silver for the $2 you charge for your paper. I only differ from them in degree. I would like to shave you a little more. I am candid. These are "hard times," as you have heard, and if I shave you at all, I propose to take 50 cents a dollar, rather than the paltry 9 cents the Bland bill takes. And then, too, you can afford to lose something for the sentiment of the thing. Think of it, will you? You will be helping to redeem the promises of "the fathers"—that ought to count for something, and, on the whole, I think I have made you a liberal offer.

If this does not suit, will you help me to get Congress to make pork a legal tender for this year, say at $5 per hundred. I guess this last proposition will suit me best, because there is nearly as much pork in Rock county as there is silver in the hands of the silver kings of Nevada.

Very truly yours,
Fulton, Feb. 9. GRAH.

UNION.

A lively runaway occurred in town last Friday. The team belonging to Mr. Locke Brigham was left standing in front of his father's residence, and becoming lonesome, started on an exploring expedition; being hitched to a wagon on which was a hay-rack they became frightened and in short order unloaded the rack, broke the wagon tongue, reared, whiffled and necked, thereby becoming detached from the wagon; then ran astride a tree, throwing one of the horses and stunning him badly, but not seriously. They were then stopped and properly cared for.

The house of Mrs. Gillies is at last finished, and its cozy rooms will soon be occupied by herself and family.
—B. S. Hoxie, of Cookville, and Ed. Teveraux, of Jug Prairie, are running a lively opposition in the interests of their respective cheese factories. Each one has obtained a route from this neighborhood.

The Baptist church of this place, has extended an invitation to George Rodgers, their pastor, to remain another year. He is an energetic worker and gives good satisfaction.

—Willie King has been spending a few days visiting relatives here. He has been in government employ in Shanghai, China, for the last two years. He spent some time in Paris, and also in London, on his homeward trip. He went by way of San Francisco, so he has been round the world, and is well stocked with information.

—Mrs. Green, of New York, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bullard, for several weeks. She intends returning soon.

The successful term of writing school, taught by Prof. Ella Coggon, closes this week.
—These sidewalks would not come same.

Beyond the Reach of Human Skill
Is the power to restore the hair to bald heads when the bulbs at the roots are destroyed by age or disease; but there are doubtless many persons becoming bald, whose hair by careful attention might be restored to its original luxuriance and beauty. Parker's Hair Balsam is an elegant preparation, designed to meet the public want for a harmless hair dressing and restorative. It acts like magic, commencing at the very roots, removes Dandruff, and all humors from the scalp, and never fails to restore gray or faded hair to the original color, and the soft, rich and glossy appearance of youth. By its occasional use falling of the hair is immediately checked, and a luxuriant and beautiful growth of young hair insured. The exquisite perfume and the purity of its composition are highly appreciated, and as it is not a dye and does not stain the skin or clothing, it is a growing favorite of the tablet everywhere. Buy a bottle from your druggist, A. J. Roberts, Janesville, Wis., and test its merits. jan5dw

Chicago Market.

CHICAGO, February 9

Flour—Shippers were tolerable free buyers, and the markets ruled steady

Wheat—The market on spring wheat—The market on this cereal was somewhat irregular to-day

At the opening of the session the market exhibited considerable strength, but the number of sellers proved to be much larger than was anticipated, and as the day advanced an easier feeling was developed. Still the weakness suffered in no respect accompanied by a bearish tendency, and the decline actually suffered was confined to 1½c, with prices only ¼c lower than the quotations current on yesterday evening. The trading, while mainly of a scalping order, was fair, and the trade was watched throughout with more than ordinary interest. Last week the receipts at this point amounted to 70,000 bu, and the shipments to 69,800 bu. Considering the uncertain state of the market, and the influence which the settlement of the war questions is likely to continue to exert on prices, which are now regarded with more or less shipments are maintained at a remarkably good figure. Eastern and foreign buyers seem to find it necessary to purchase with rail freights down to 3¢ per 100 lbs to New York, the legitimate trade is kept in a healthful state than the surroundings scarcely warrant

CORN—39½¢ cash;
OATS—39½¢ cash;
RYE—No 2, 51
BARLEY—New No 2, 46½
PORK—cash $10.40 10 25
